We Will Never Forget

Oh, Exeter to thee we raise
Our gratitude and songs of praise.
Our colors blue and white
Will lead us in the right.
Oh, Exeter, you proudly stand
Beneath the might of God's great hand,
Guiding our hearts and minds
For future days.
Exeter always worthy of our praise.

Beneath the mighty eagle's wing
The voices of your children sing;
With joyful hearts and true
Steadfast in all we do.
Though we may go our separate way,
Remembering you through all our days,
Hail Alma Mater, we pledge to thee
Our true devotion and loyalty.

Days Of Our Alma Mater

Character Is Developed Through Diverse Attitudes And Individual Thoughts

It wouldn't be proper for the foreword of a yearbook not to mention that the yearbook records one school year's activities. We of the yearbook staff hope we have done much more than that. We've tried to reflect the entire student body's character through pictures and copy.

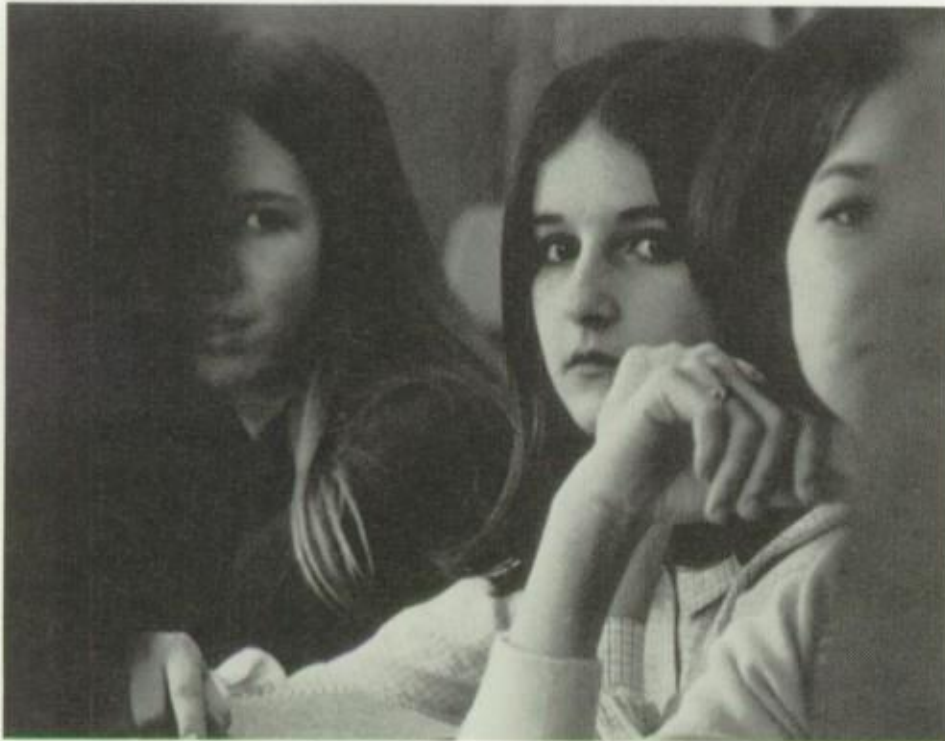

To analyze the character of the student body is to analyze its individual participants. Though each person is completely individual, the generalities of students are exemplified by particular moods and thoughts. Each of these particular thoughts are usually instilled by members of the faculty and administration. They realize that our young minds and bodies are being formed during the high school years. The previous generation's mistakes seem chimerical and foolish. We need to recognize these mistakes and correct them to make a better world for our peers. The necessity of learning to reach this goal cannot be overemphasized. To reason, to put to use our knowledge is the goal of our high school years.

We wish to record this attitude and character of this particular year at Exeter as reflections of our school life and friends, both teachers and pupils. We feel these things typify the spirit of Exeter.

Thought And Concentration, Bases Of Success

We reflect thought, attitudes, and character of a new age.

The past is gone, but not forgotten;
we build on the old.

Our thought is a greater power to imagine;
to shape dreams into reality . . . to create.

Writing verse, sketching, constructing are our creativity.

We achieve by serious consideration and planning
. . . success.

On the countenance of Exeter . . . concentration.

Evolution of success . . .

a road paved by contributions of each to the whole.

A progression of events as . . .

the day we forgot our pens for an English test,

Waiting in line for lunch fifteen minutes

. . . there's no food!

Marching in the Ephrata Parade . . .

blisters.

Taking a typing test

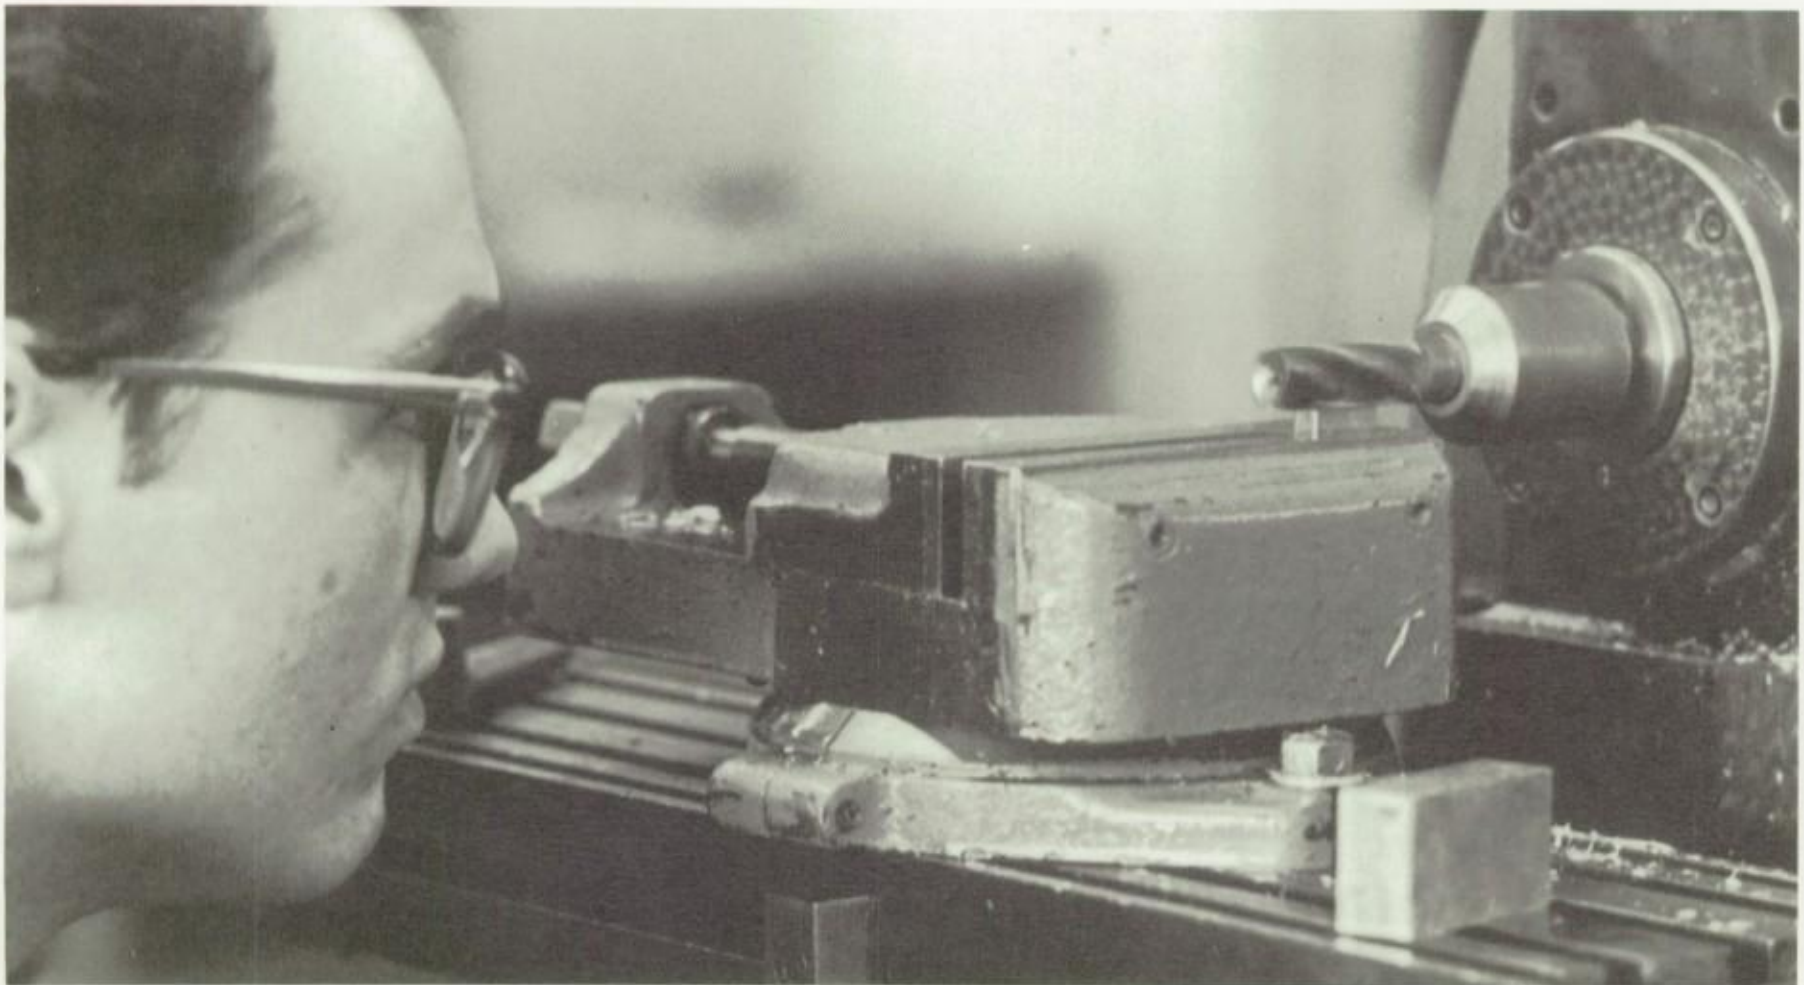

. . . missing "home row."

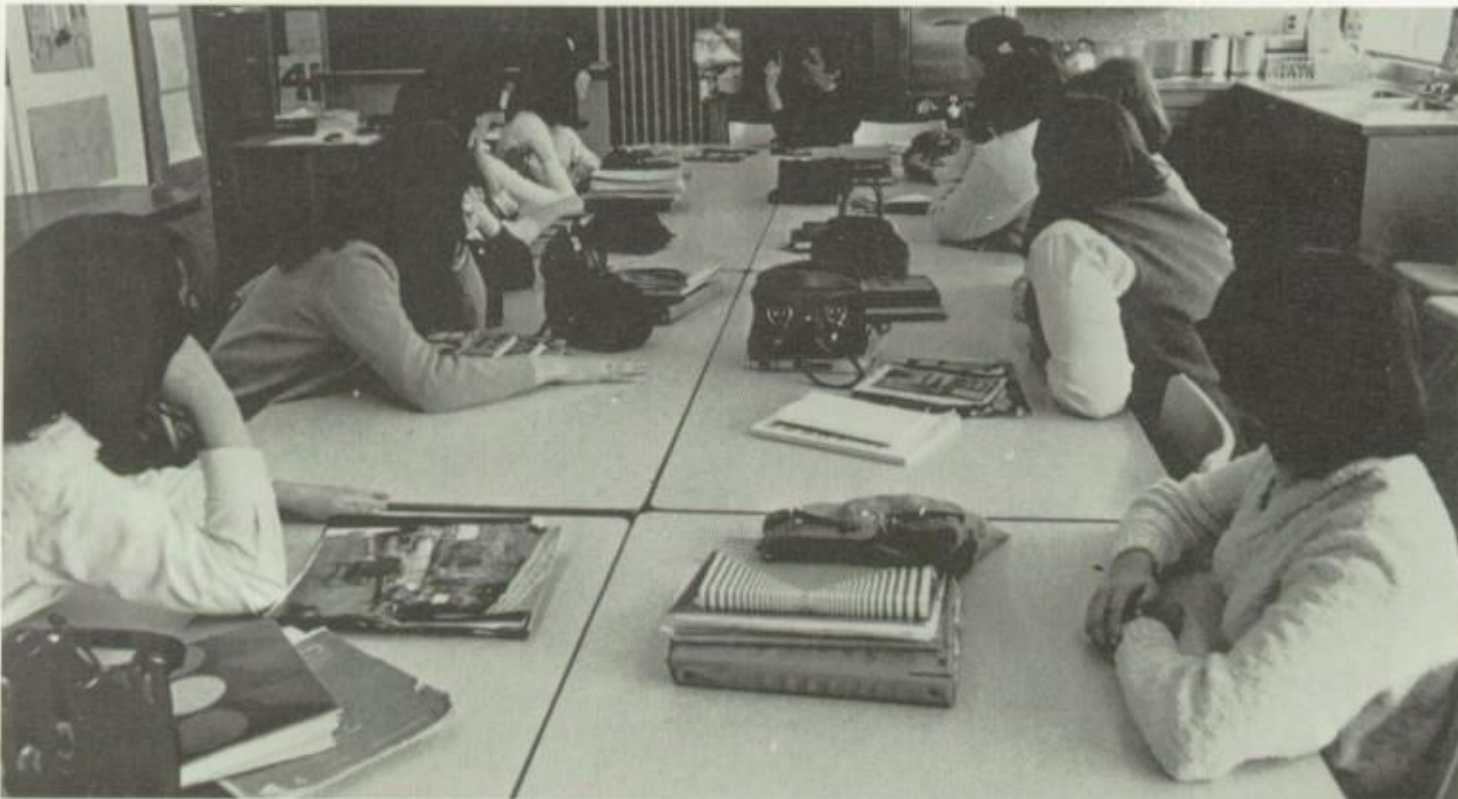

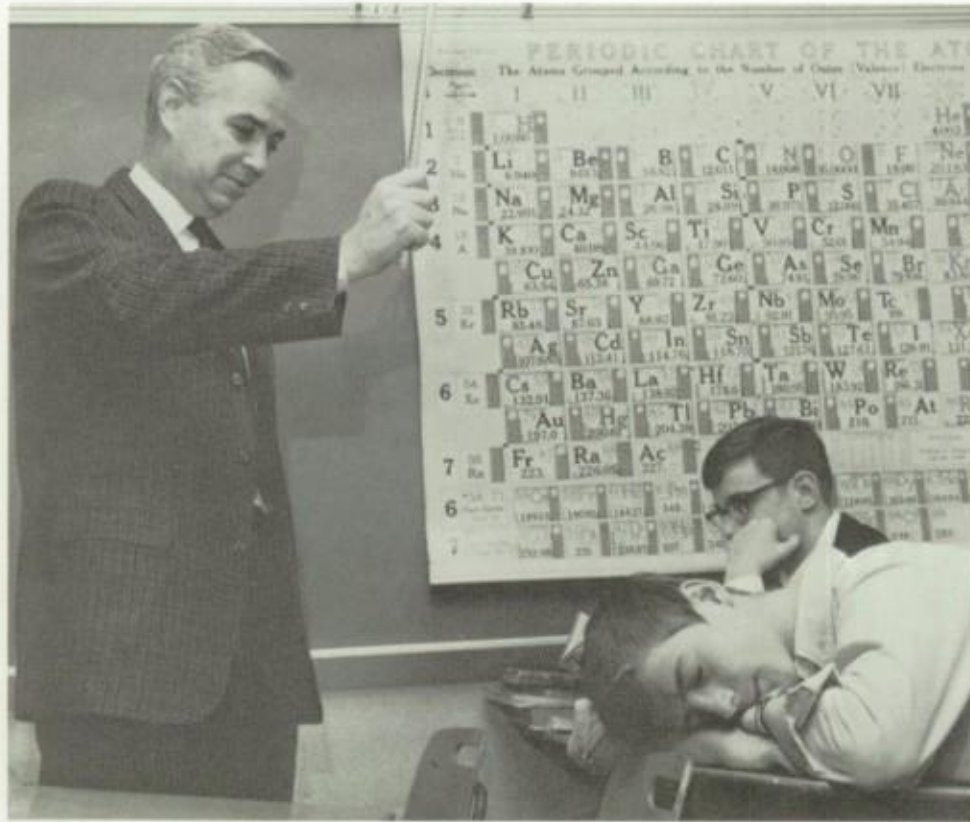

And dissecting a frog . . .

not finding the heart.

Evolves Into Individual And Group Actions

Working Together, Striving To Attain A Goal,

Remember the joy of . . .

handing in our term papers.

Slaving weeks over a canvas

. . . winning a prize.

Studying for a current events test

. . . passing.

Attending months of school

. . . teachers' in-service day.

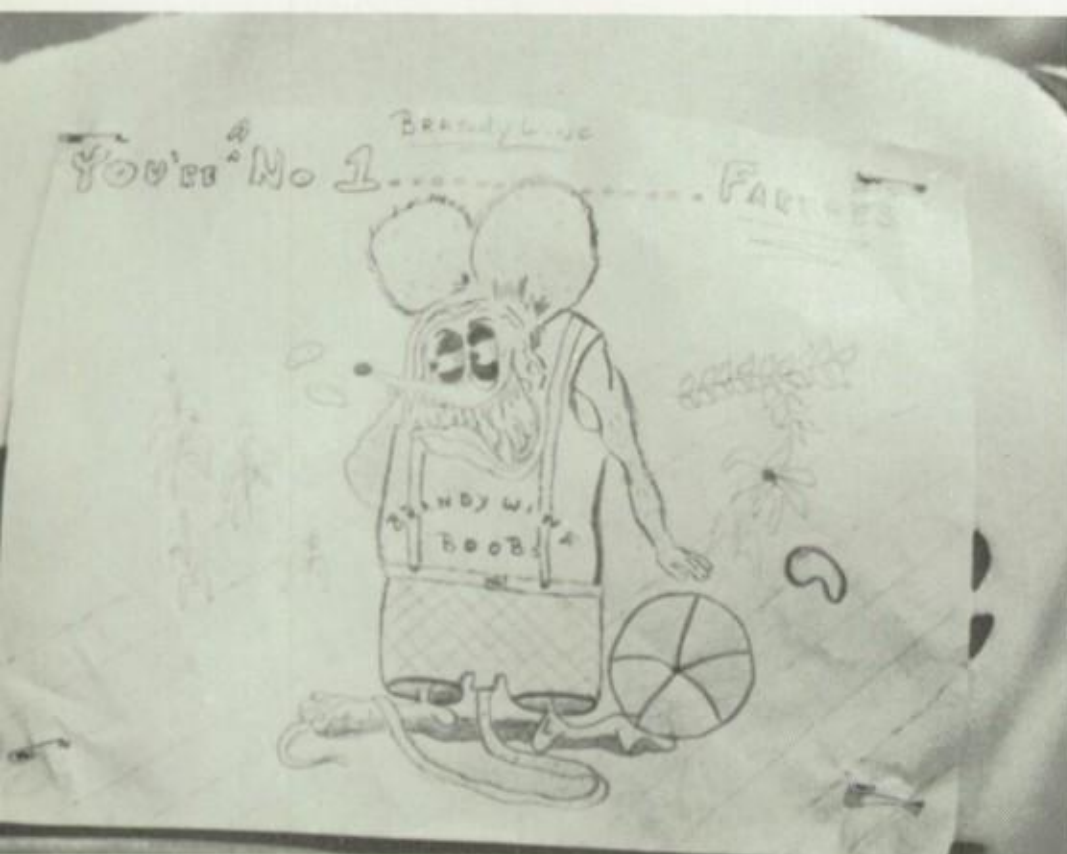

The frustration of a new student . . . who?

We strove to attain . . .

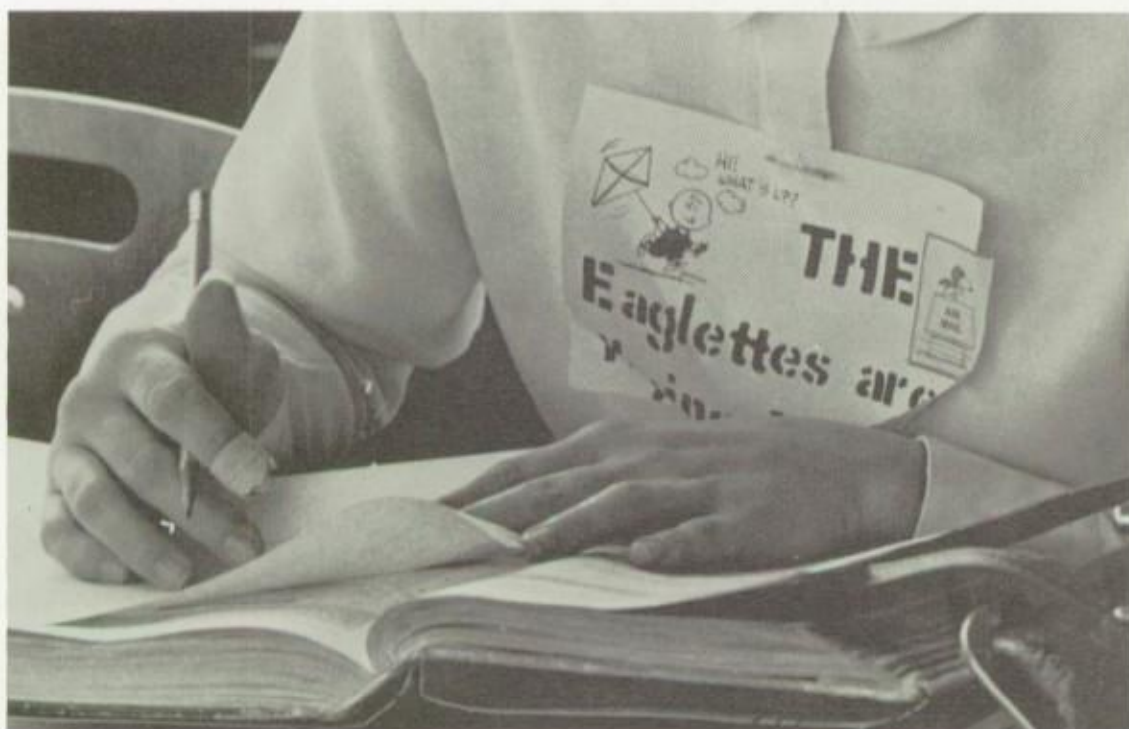

the spoils are ours.

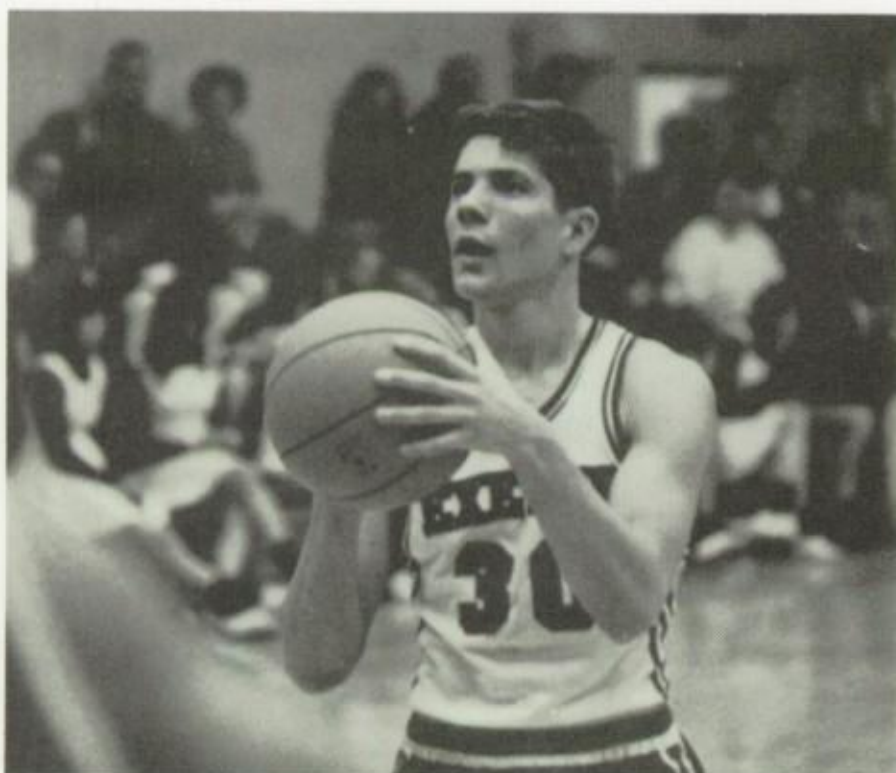

Produces Team Spirit And Pride In Exeter

The winning team has proud fans and the losing team. . . .
Cheering at a close wrestling match
. . . sore throats.
Wearing school pride
. . . a new band front jacket.
Losing a hockey game to Mt. Penn
. . . heartbreak.
Team spirit . . . victory or defeat.

The Team, Impelled By School Support, Achieves Victory

A team supported by school spirit achieves the ultimate . . . victory

Victory is the basket that wins
. . . in overtime

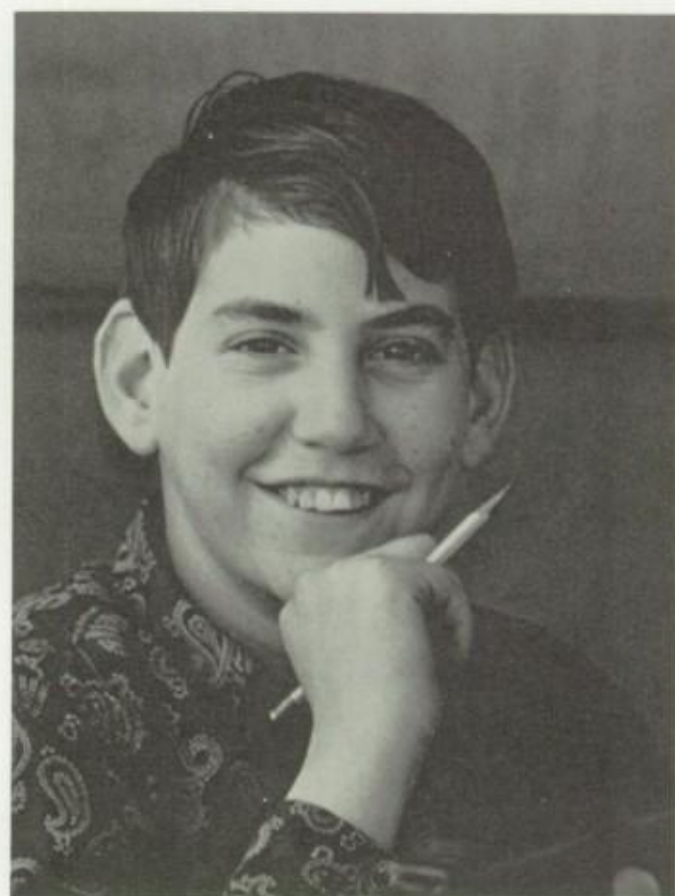

The defeat of Daniel Boone
. . . Pig Iron Trophy

Victories . . . stepping stones to a championship.

Faces Reflect Hope And Determination, Forming
The Image Of Exeter

Looking at ourselves we see
 The faces of Exeter . . . a mirror.
 We are hope and determination
 . . . the attempt.
 We are concentration and action
 . . . the culmination.
 We are enthusiastic and fun-loving
 . . . happiness.
 On our reflected faces . . . pride.

SENIORS

As Seniors Reminiscing, We Will Think Of Eating Early Lunch, Lord Of The Flies

Our Final Games, The Sex Education Seminars, Exchanging Pictures, And Graduation.

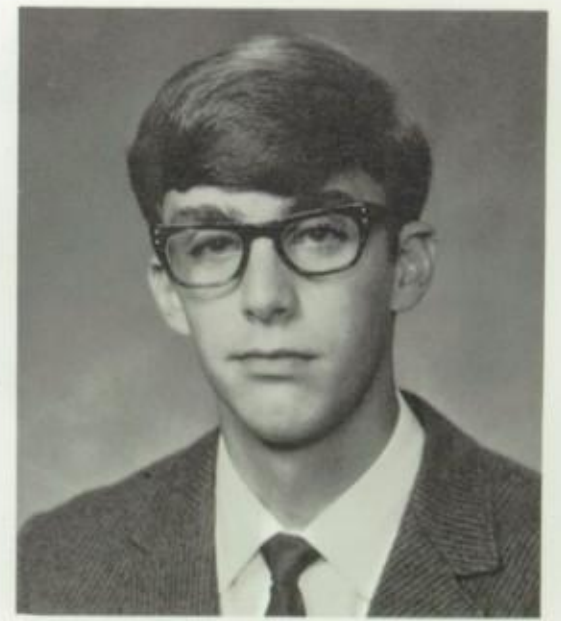

The senior year was the unforgettable one. This last year of school was filled with new activities and thoughts as the seniors worked in their classes and made their plans for the future. Some seniors took advantage of the new vo-tech school and started their careers with in-school technical training. All members of the senior class reached the end of their formal public schooling and with graduation began their own private lives of further education or work, each one searching for the fruits that the future may bear. All the events of this senior year became one memory.

UNDERCLASSMEN

Reflections Of Underclassmen Will Include Tests, That First Term Paper, Homework, Dissections, Speech Classes, And Behind The Wheel Driver Education Training.

The underclassmen worked diligently as each one strived to reach the end of the year in his class. Freshman quickly oriented themselves to the senior high school and began a serious program of study which will continue for four years. Sophomores began making plans for their futures in the courses they selected. Juniors continued working as they moved nearer to their final year in their school lives. Vo-tech school courses became a reality for many underclassmen as they chose training for their future careers.

ACTIVITIES

Our Memories Will Include Running In The Rain, Confetti At Football Games, Deadlines, Final Dress Rehearsal, Coke At The School Store, And Late Practices.

Activities reflected the diversity of the student body in sports and organizations from football to debating. Although the sporting aspect of activities received most of the limelight, the academic achievements were also recognized. Whether they were physical or mental, all activities were a team effort. This team effort first introduced in his earlier years of school was built upon in high school to prepare the individual for the biggest team effort: life itself.

The Year Was In Its Yellowing Time,
And The Face Of Nature A Study In Old Gold.

Grahme

In the fall when school spirits were at their peak, extracurricular activities were closely followed by the student body. Future football, hockey, and cross-country meets were heralded by posters throughout the school. Service organizations were engaged in many activities and the first all-school musical was a rousing success.

Eagles Soar To Second Successful Season

Before the game Coach Don Thomas gives final orders to the varsity seniors.

Football 1968 proved to be successful for the Eagles, placing them second in Inter-County League standings with a 6-1-1 record. The offensive unit scored a total of 161 points while the defensive team allowed a mere 44 points, an accomplishment which made them Berks County Defensive Champions for the second consecutive year. The Eagle's strength was shown by their fifteen consecutive wins and was upset only by Holy Name's one point margin over Exeter on October 25.

The football team returns to the field for warm-up exercises before the start of the second half of the game.

Quarterback Kerry works hand in hand with teammates to lead them onto victory.

A coach's resolution: the kindling spirit of every winning team.

Though small in size this year, the Eagles had a large amount of spirit, determination and drive. They proved that quantity did not matter, but quality did. During many August practices sounds of "Scotty-Otty-Otty" and "Dirty Pierre" drifted through the "isometric kick line" and over the "rock garden". On the football field in September and October, evidence of the value of those practices was given by the six victories and one tied game. By working together, the small but mighty Eagles proved teamwork is the key factor in success.

Self-determination is reflected on Charlie's face as he watches the game attentively from the sideline.

Teamwork Is The Eagle's Magic Ingredient

The Eagles' defensive team, which placed first in the county, show their skill in the game against their opponent, the Wyomissing Spartans.

Y-Teens, a girls' organization associated with the international Y.W.C.A., was an active group in 1968-69. Under the supervision of Mrs. Tatjana Ludwig, Exeter's Y-Teens displayed leadership, friendship, service, and participated in social activities. Money-making projects for this year included Chocolate Day, a broom sale, and the annual MORP. Some of the profits were used to support Jolene, an American Indian girl. A Christmas party and an Easter egg hunt were held again this year for underprivileged children in the Reading area. A highlight of the year was a formal banquet held at the Holiday Inn in honor of all the senior members.

3rd — Steel City Championship

1st — County Championship

2nd — District III Championship

1st — State Championship

Grueling endurance, the main phase of cross country, is mirrored on the faces of Bruce Bond, Jim Ludwig, and Paul Lombardi.

Paul Lombardi and Bruce Bond confer with the coach for last minute instructions.

Speed, determination, and stamina were the qualities that characterized the 1968 cross-country team. Although suffering only one defeat in their regular season, they managed to capture the County Championship, avenging a previous loss to Wilson. In the District III Meet, Exeter's harriers suffered a disappointing second place finish, but went on to win the P.I.A.A. Class B State Title for the second consecutive year.

This success was attributed to Coach Sutton's year-round training and ability to develop a runner to his fullest capacity. A prime example of this was the great advancement of the underclassmen who continued the successes to which Exeter was accustomed.

Hopeful and determined, David Ernst and Jeff Yost jog along the pathway which will lead them to a successful finish of the course.

Determined Cross Country Team Captures State Title For Second Consecutive Year

Running is only half of the cross-country squad's job. Their timing is the other equally important half.

Student Council Establishes New Boosters' Club

Student Council, an organization that developed closer cooperation between the students, faculty, and administration, provided a working knowledge of democracy with the student body, and it improved the standards of scholarship, leadership, and character within the school.

Advised by Mr. MacLean, this year Student Council formed the Boosters' Club which helped promoting school spirit. A Fun and Frolic Night was a complete success for the club. This year improvements and additions were made to the club's constitution. Revisions in the Constitution included having a delegate representing the Exeter students who attend the Vocational Technical School.

Exeter's Eaglettes Fight With All Their Might

Exeter's mighty Eaglettes, known for their spirit and determination "winded" their way through all types of weather to end the season with a 5-2-3 record. Led by their coach, Miss Barbara Rankin and co-captains Kathy Formiconi and Becky Giles, the girls were known for their unique tactics on the field. The stimulating pre-game huddles and "the face," along with skill and enthusiasm, were the devices used to down their opponents. The six seniors on this year's team contributed fine skills to the games and the underclassmen received beneficial experience.

Eaglettes Vicki Resh, Ella Stackhouse and Debbie Clark cheer the hockey team from the sidelines.

Oranges are all that remain after a hockey victory.

Ella pleads earnestly with Inspector Barnes to reconsider his criminal accusations against her and Susanswerphone.

This year saw a new dramatic event added to the school calendar of activities, the first all school musical, "Bells Are Ringing." Students from tenth to twelfth grade spent long hours under the guiding hand of Miss Vicki Steinberg to make the initial musical, a two act comedy, a resounding success. Karl Schmidt, with the assistance of Connie Harding, played the delightful musical score. Some of the memorable selections sung by the forty-four member chorus and the principals included "It's a Simple Little System," "The Party's Over," and "Just In Time."

First All School Musical Is Resounding Success

The 44 member chorus provide a perfect harmonic background by singing "Hello, Hello There," "A Simple Little System," and "Drop That Name."

K. Bybel and R. Shugers listen to G. Seifrit explain his "Self Reliance."

The musical revolved around the escapades of Ella Peterson (Pat Hegeman), a switchboard operator for Susanswerphone. Ella along with Sue (Diane Loeb) and Gwynne (Karen Dunn) comprised the staff of the answering service. Much to the annoyance of Sue, Ella could not keep herself from advising and helping the subscribers. She gained Sue's further disapproval by falling in love with the voice of Jeff Moss (Glenn Seifrit), a troubled playwright. Complications arose when Sue became enraptured with Sandor Prantz (Matthew Kent), supposedly a record distributor for Titanic Records, which was the front for a bookie operation.

Ella's efforts to aid the problem-plagued subscribers aroused the suspicions of Inspector Barnes (James Bucci) and his assistant Francis (Ward Snyder), who believed Susanswerphone to be a coverup for another type of business. The play ended with the mutual love of Jeff and Ella and the success of Jeff's new play.

P. Hegeman expresses her love in the song "It's a Perfect Relationship."

M. DelVecchio is dismayed when she discovers that Titanic Records is a bookie operation.

A toast is given to the play and its cast by E. Ammarell.

House Numbers Highlight Hi-Y's Service Projects

Hi-Y is an all male organization designed to assist the YMCA in their program of community, school and personal service. Guided by their advisor Mr. Murray, Exeter's club sponsored many traveling cake sales throughout the township this year, ushered for the junior class play and participated in interclub "Y" basketball. Highlighting 1969 was an art escapade: painting house numbers on the residents' curbs. Donations were accepted to help serve as a community service and fund-raising project for the group.

Key Club Sponsors Special Day And Contest

The Key Club, a service organization for boys from tenth, eleventh and twelfth grades, provided the school with many services which made it a more pleasant atmosphere for students and teachers alike. It also went into the community as well, to undertake various projects. Under the direction of Mr. Harry Shank, the Key Clubbers helped out at the Fellowship House and operated the school store. They continuously kept the bulletin boards in the halls up to date and arranged the trophy cases. This year the club held a Clash Day, collected for the Heart Fund, and sponsored a "Happiness Is . . ." contest. This organization prepared boys to assume an adult role in all community affairs.

Whittier

Although winter weather brought students indoors, the school still hummed with many activities. The noisy, rollicking atmosphere usually thought of for the outdoors did not wane, however; for a person's school spirit was kept bolstered by either the vibrant cheerleaders or the participants themselves. The basketball program was rebuilding and wrestling had its first successful season. The annual Senior Class Play and the Y-Teens' Morp drew large crowds of people ready for an evening of enjoyment.

Varsity Squad Falls To Bug More Than Opposition

Although the overall slate for the season was 8-14, the figures didn't tell the whole story. This season could aptly be titled the "year of the flu," for despite the hard work of team members and the coaching of Frank Sudock, the team was plagued by the "bug" and injuries. The starting five seniors were all felled by the flu sometime during the season. Nevertheless, the Eagles continued to fly high by giving their best in all their games. High scorer for the season was senior Glenn Focht with a total of 314.

Cheerleaders Boost Morale Of The Student Body

Exeter's six varsity and six junior varsity cheerleaders, with their winning smiles and spirited attitudes, boosted the teams to many victories. Under the direction of their new advisor, Mrs. Paula Desjardins, who was a former Exeter cheerleader, the girls promoted school spirit for all games. During football season, the cheerleaders made countless "boosting" signs to hang in the halls and decorated the goal posts before home games. Held before the last football game, the annual bonfire highlighted the fall season. When the winter and basketball season arrived, the cheerleaders introduced the players before all the basketball games. Throughout the year they organized pep rallies and continually attempted to get the whole student body to support Exeter's teams.

These fellows came on strong late in the season to win five of their last seven games. The teamwork was developed to a point where their contribution will be greatly appreciated by the varsity squad next year.

Algernon gives comfort and consoling words to Jack, who has just learned of the death of his brother.

Senior Thespians Perform

This year the senior class presented Oscar Wilde's English "drawing room" comedy The Importance of Being Earnest. This performance directed by Miss Vicki Steinburg involved a series of chaotic situations which resulted from mistaken identities of main characters. Throughout the play which concluded happily, the typical British dry humor was present.

Lady Bracknell and her daughter Gwendolyn, arrive at Algernon's town house for tea.

Doctor Chasuble, the village Reverend, meditates upon the perplexing situation at hand.

A Drawing Room Comedy

The confusing situation was set in the first act when Jack Worthing, played by Terry Vogt, proposed to Gwendolyn, Rebecca Giles, who really thought Jack's name was Ernest because she had professed she could not love one by any other name. But Gwendolyn's mother, Lady Bracknell, Cheryl Keller, refused to allow the marriage for Jack confessed he had no parents and was found as a baby in a pocketbook in Victoria Station.

The play moved to the country where Cecily Cardew, played by Molly Mengel, who was also in love with the name Ernest, met Algernon who she thought was her Cousin Ernest, and accepted his proposal of marriage. Also in the country were Miss Prism, Sabine Mueller, and Doctor Chasubles, Mike Leece, who added humor to the situations. Comedy and confusion climbed to its height when Gwendolyn called on Cecily and through conversation both revealed they were engaged to be married to "Ernest." The truth was revealed when Jack and Algernon came unexpectedly on the scene and were confronted by both girls who demanded explanations. Although the situation seemed very perplex and insoluble, many unexpected incidents occurred and the play ended on a happy note.

Upon discovering they are engaged to the same man, Gwendolyn and Cecily glare at each other with fiendish contempt.

Algernon proposes to sweet young Cecily as Lady Bracknell, Algernon's aunt, looks on with disapproval.

Prim Miss Prism looks askance at Cecily's frivolities.

School spirit and determination were words used to describe the Eaglettes.

The Basketeers displayed remarkable sportsmanship in their offensive and defensive skills. Under the coaching of Miss Frey and Miss Rankin and captains Kathy Formiconi and Kathy Bechtel, the girls finished the season with 5 wins and 3 losses. The five seniors will be missed next year, especially, high-scorer Kathy Formiconi and "muncher" Ellen Herman.

Receiving the ball, Ellen Herman plans her next move.

Brotherhood Club Promotes Religious Understanding

Brotherhood Club, sponsored by the National Conference of Christians and Jews, was an organization whose purpose was to promote a better working relationship between students of different creeds, races, and religion and their student/teacher relationship, thus spreading world-wide harmony and brotherhood.

Exeter's Brotherhood Club fulfilled their goal very well by having the members attend a different church every month, barring no religion. They also aided the refugees overseas by collecting baby clothes for the Vietnamese. Other projects included cake sales, collecting for the Heart Fund, a toothbrush sale, and the annual club picnic.

The Future Teachers of America Club was an organization for any student who planned to make teaching his career. Advised and guided by Mrs. Joyceann Haines, the club learned about teaching by observing students, classroom activities, the role of a teacher, and by the officers' attending the F. T. A. Convention that was held at Central Catholic High School. A highlight for the club this year was a trip to West Chester State College. There the club toured the campus and previewed the life of a college student. Apple Day, a hoagie sale, and a traveling cake sale were fund-raising projects of the club. Allowing ninth grade membership was a first and without this addition, the club's membership still almost doubled.

M.C.C. Aids Community Through Service Projects

The Medical Careers Club was founded in order to assist students in the explorations of health careers. Its aim was also to aid the school and community in any health advice or service possible. An example of this was the members' donation of a pair of crutches to the school. The crutches were available to anyone in the district who needed them. Also the club made cards and disposable pads for Hamburg State Hospital as another of its many service projects. They tried to encompass all areas of medicine when they chose guest speakers from Allentown Hospital, a speech therapist, and also a representative from the Army Medical Corps.

Exeter's Debating Club, under the supervision of Mrs. Marian Kline, was found to be an educational organization in which its members learned the techniques of debating and realized the rewards of an intellectual activity. Wrestlers' Third Season Sees Marked Improvement

Kimbel McChalicher begins an inside switch on his opponent.

Wrestling, one of Exeter's newest sports, got off to a good start this year before running into trouble with Berks County's power houses. Different from previous years, the matmen constantly scored points which provided several close matches. Coached by Don Evans, the team won four and lost seven matches. There were enough boys interested to have competition in every weight class.

Bright spots on the team this year were Rick Richard who was undefeated throughout the season and Brian Valleau who had only one loss. These two wrestlers qualified for districts and Rick Richard continued to the state tournament.

The Mixed Chorus Performs Separate Night Of Music

The Chorus gave many of Exeter's students the opportunity to advance their vocal talents. Under the direction of Mr. Karl Schmidt, the group provided music for the Christmas assembly as well as the Choral Night of Music. The Chorus sang different varieties of music that ranged from secular to sacred. Members of the chorus participated in county, district, and regional events. Hard work and long practice sessions twice a week were necessary for excellent qualities in performances throughout the year.

A new addition to the music world was made by making the records more accessible for enjoyment and educational purposes.

A busy organization this year in our school was the stage crew. Under the direction of Mr. Tuckey they worked many hours assembling scenery for the senior and junior class plays, the all-school musical, and various assemblies.

Echo Publishes Ten Issues Over Course Of Year

The school newspaper, the Exeter Echo, was the voice of the school that was planned, organized, written, printed, and circulated by students. Advised by Mrs. June L. Gwyn and Mrs. Arlene Harner, the Echo reported the news of the past, present and future from month to month. The goal of the newspaper staff this year was to have ten issues per year. Mrs. Gwyn and three students attended the Pennsylvania Scholastic Press Association and the Columbia Scholastic Press Association conventions. The organization gave students experience in writing, page make-up, and editing. The newspaper was distributed to all students and sent to Exeter Honor Society alumni who were freshmen in college this year.

Yearbook Staff Compiles Nostalgia Of School Year

Upon each student mind are left impressions of the passing year's events and activities and as in previous years the Pioneer, Exeter's yearbook publication, compiled an accurate and memorable account. Staffs were selected in the spring of 1968 and soon after, the editor and copy and layout staffs attended the annual yearbook conference in Hershey, Penna. Return to classes in the fall brought work in earnest under the guidance of advisor, Miss Audrey Schropp, and capable editor-in-chief William Britt. An ad campaign, undertaken by all members, helped to finance the volume along with advance sales of the yearbook.

The layout staff were the first into action, building the framework of the yearbook by choosing pictures and planning pages. Next the copy staff penned captions, headlines, and paragraphs. Scores of athletic events were provided by the sports staff and the art staff added the finishing touch with drawings carrying out the theme of the book. All yearbook sales and advertisements were handled by the business staff, advised by Miss Batastini. After all the toil, yearbook staff members were left with memories of the frantic work and fun involved in their accomplishment.

Came The Spring With All Its Splendor,
All Its Flowers, Leaves, And Grasses.

Longfellow

Spring was the time for baseball, track, golf, tennis, May Day, and the prom. But to the Exeter student, spring especially meant fourth quarter and fourth quarter meant vacation or graduation; the time for the culmination of a long, hard struggle.

Musically Talented Students Represent Exeter

As in previous years, musicians from Exeter received additional musical experience by participating in County and District groups. Talented members of both the chorus and band had a share in attending the respective concerts.

County Band held its concert at Brandywine High School and featured such numbers as "Victory at Sea" and

"Fan Fare and Allegro." From here, various members of the band were privileged to attend District Band at Daniel Boone High School. "Man of La Mancha" and "Set Down Servant" were highlights of County Chorus held at Fleetwood High School.

Junior Class' Melodrama

"Deadwood Dick" or "The Game of Gold", based on the once popular "dime novels" of Edward Wheeler, was presented by the junior class. The three act melodrama by Tom Laggert depicted an ideal portrayal of the days of the gay Gold Rush and was equipped with fair maidens in distress, courageous heroes and evil hearted villains. The scene, which reflected the style of the Old West, was set in Calamity Jane's (Judy Ressler) "Man Trap Saloon" in the town of Deadwood Gulch.

Director Miss Vicki Steinberg, principals of the play, and the other juniors who comprised the various committees worked feverishly to bring to life the humorous melodrama.

The sheriff, Tony Sinkosky, aids a poor damsel in distress.

Provides Many Laughs

The story began with the ambush of the stagecoach transporting Lily Blossom (Rose Ann Seyler) and her sister Rose (Rebecca Harper) to the town in search of their father. Terrible Deadwood Dick kidnapped Rose and thus Lily, who is blind, arrived safely in town alone. She was befriended by no one except for Pong Ping (Barbara Britt), a Chinese cook. Left defenseless, innocent Lily was then subjected to the plots of the villain, Blackman Redburn (Matthew Kent) who wanted to obtain the map to the Blossom Gold Mine which had been branded into Lily's flesh.

Meanwhile Molly Loveless (Cheryl Walenta) had revealed to Calamity Jane, owner of the saloon, a deep dark secret of her past of which even Molly's husband, the sheriff (Tony Sinkosky) was unaware. Its contents concerned her daughter whom she had abandoned and upon whose back had been burned the location of a gold mine.

The plot thickened when Rose was released from captivity by the dashing hero, Ned Harris (Patrick Vogt), who had been the one to originally kidnap Rose, because he had fallen madly in love with her. Rose returned to Deadwood Gulch in order to relocate Lily and discovered that her darling sister had been stolen. In the thrilling conclusion Ned Harris, assisted by Wild Bill Hickok (Terry Burkholder), saved the day by rescuing poor Lily, reuniting mother and daughter, and bringing the black-hearted villains to their doom.

"Have no fear." Ned Harris, Pat Vogt, and Wild Bill Hickok, Terry Burkholder, are here to protect you.

Exeter's traditional Night of Music was divided, this year, into two evenings of musical entertainment. The first part which was held on March 28, 1969, featured the band in concert. Director, John Kamm, Jr., opened the program with the "Star Spangled Banner," "The Music Makers," "Malta G. C.," and "Al Hirt — Honey in the Horn." Other featured selections were "Carnival of Melody," "The Minnesota March," "Salute to P. M. E. A.," and "Case Grande" directed by senior James Seidel. A highlight of the program was the performance of the band front. Under the supervision of Mrs. Grace Kline, the girls presented their twirling and modern dance versions to popular songs, such as "The Stripper," "The Beat Goes On," "This Is My Country," and "Swinging On Parade."

April 11, 1969, was the second evening performance. This was the choral portion of the Night of Music. A harmonious blend of voices could be heard throughout all their numbers. Their selections included "Alleluia," "Someone to Watch Over Me," "You're A Good Man, Charlie Brown," "Anthem of Spring," "Water Come 'A Me Eye," "Elegy," and "Man From La Mancha."

Color Guard Represents Exeter At Field Day

The first flash of recognition of the "blue and white" was the ten girls making up the colorguard. These girls led all parades with flags, guns, swords, and Exeter's banner. They also performed at all football games and marched in for the National Anthem at home basketball games. This year, however, an added honor was placed upon the colorguard. Debbie Bivans, who carried the school flag, and Marcia Hoyer, American flag bearer were asked to participate in an International Track and Field Day held at Governor Mifflin for all Berks Schools. This provided an Olympian type setting fitting for the event.

Majorettes And Flag Twirlers Add Glitter And Glamour To Band

After two weeks of grueling summer practices Exeter, once again turned out 32 of the prettiest high-stepping girls in a band front. This corps was composed of 16 majorettes, headed by Sandy Kelly, and 16 flag twirlers, led by Sandy Sands. These girls worked hard the entire year in order to perfect complicated twirl and modern dance routines for feature numbers in football games, continuous concentration in parades, their performance in the annual Night of Music, and adding to all this, a little sympathy for shows given to the aged at the West Reading Convalescent Home.

The tennis team, coached by Mr. Goulden, again captured the county championship to culminate their season. The boys continued on their undefeated ways till their fifth match. The loss to Wyomissing broke the winning streak at 36 matches. However the loss was avenged with two victories by the identical scores of 5-2. The team will miss seniors Dave Hicks, Mike Funke, Lane Steinmetz and George Frey.

Tennis And Golf Teams Win County Championship

With its winning streak broken at 40 by Wyomissing but later avenged in the playoff, the county championship was now on the line for Exeter golfers. Elco represented the Western Division and defending champs Muhlenberg the Northern Division. Playing from the blue marker senior Craig Crossley led Exeter to a convincing eight stroke win. Over the season Craig had a 80.1 average and junior Joe Codi a 80.12

National Honor Society Stresses Four Qualities

An academic organization, National Honor Society's goal was to promote in students a desire and enthusiasm in striving for excellence in the four fields of scholarship, service, leadership, and character. Activities of N.H.S. included a trip to Lehigh University for the annual convention where stimulating lectures were heard and sending Echoes to past members of the N.H.S. The climax of the year came with the solemn induction ceremony for new members. Senior speakers who represented the four virtues were Jacquelyn Showalter, torchbearer; Ellen Herman, scholarship; Jeff Stuart, leadership; Molly Mengel, service; and Donna Loe, character.

Baseball Team Has Dismal Season: Finishes 3-13

Frantically reaching for the bag, Kerry Delewski manages to get back to first just in time to beat the throw.

Coach Robert Murray explains to the boys the finer points of the game.

The baseball team, coached by Mr. Murray, suffered a dismal season finishing with a 3-13 overall record. The boys were 2-10 in league play. One bright spot however was that when the pitchers were in good shape, the team won. They scored two major upsets by downing previously undefeated Wyomissing 9-2 and then stopped league leading Twin Valley 5-4.

Running hard, senior Dave Hart rounds first and heads for second.

A tiresome but important position, catcher Scott Yoder receives another ball.

Much Improved Softball Team Finishes Second

Finishing second place in league standing, the softball team ended the season with an 8-3 record. The strategy of Coach Miss Rankin and the talented playing of the team, headed by co-captains Kathy Bechtel and Kathy Formiconi, brought to the Eaglettes a winning season which was a vast improvement over last year's record of 3-5.

Drills, physical conditioning, and game situations gave the players the needed experience and stamina in preparation for the real thing. The loss of only four seniors made the prospects for next year appear bright.

Team's Small Size Brings Disappointment In Meets

Disappointment in the field events meant the downfall of the track and field team. Exeter always managed to do well in track events, especially the distances, but when it came to field events, Exeter was lacking. However, one surprise was the consistency of Andy Bishop in the javelin. Other bright spots were Bruce Bond in the mile and Paul Lombardi in the two mile. Both boys finished fourth in their specialties in the state meet. With only three boys lost through graduation, next season's team will have plenty of experience.

Coaches Sutton and Schropp discuss plans for the coming events with seniors Bruce Bond, Paul Lombardi, and Jeff Stuart.

The girls track team this year had its victories as well as losses, but in the long run came out satisfied.

In their meet with Schuylkill Valley, Exeter lost only by 10 points, but in the Wilson Quadrangle, they placed second. At the Penn Relays, Sue Strouse, Becky Malsnee, Patricia Ellison, and Patricia Woynarowski won second place in the 440 relay. At Leonard Stephan they placed second and later won their meet with Conrad Weiser by 29 points. The girls also placed second at the Venski Relays, but later lost to Schuylkill Valley. At the county meet, the girls placed second with 43 points while Schuylkill Valley placed first with 63 points.

Annual May Day Pageant Highlights Spring Season

"Dogpatch, U.S.A.," was chosen as the theme for the 1969 May Day Pageant and under the direction of Miss Barbara Rankin, was portrayed by two dances and a tumbling routine. The dances, choreographed by Molly Mengel, were "Jubilation T. Cornpone", featuring a statue of the town hero, Jubilation T. Cornpone, and "The Sadie Hawkins Day Dance," which was a chase performed around tree stumps and rocks as the girls attempted to catch their favorite boys. "Put 'Em Back," the tumbling routine devised by choreographer Pam Hertz, showed the acrobatic talent of six girls of the town. The Junior girls performed the annual May pole dance to "Scarborough Fair." The climax of the evening's activities featured the crowning of May Queen Rebecca Giles by Crown Bearer Molly Mengel and the 1968 Queen Candice Giles. The members of the court were Kathy Bechtel, Shirley Boettlin, Kathleen Formiconi, Sandra Kelly, Donna Loe, Diane Loeb, Sabine Mueller, and Sandra Sands.

“Knights Of Chivalry” Theme Decorates Abraham

The annual junior-senior prom was held May 17, 1969 at the spacious Abraham Lincoln Hotel. The juniors carried out the theme, “Knights of Chivalry” by decorating the ballroom in medieval style. Everyone crossed the drawbridge to enter the ballroom. The walls were decorated with murals depicting the interior of a castle. The Exeter “E” appeared on a shield above the fireplace.

Faculty members wave good night as the lovely evening draws to a close.

At 8:30 P.M. the seniors, many of whom attended the senior banquet at the Abraham Lincoln Hotel also, the juniors and their dates arrived at the prom. Everyone danced to the music of the "Big Band" until 11:30. John Lutz, the sophomore class president, was dressed as a knight and Cindy Frederick, his date, was dressed as a lady fair of the Medieval Period. They presented the programs to the formal dancers.

1969 Baccalaureate Services Held At Schwarzwald U.C.C.

Perhaps a note of sorrow as the seniors read their names on the list of graduates.

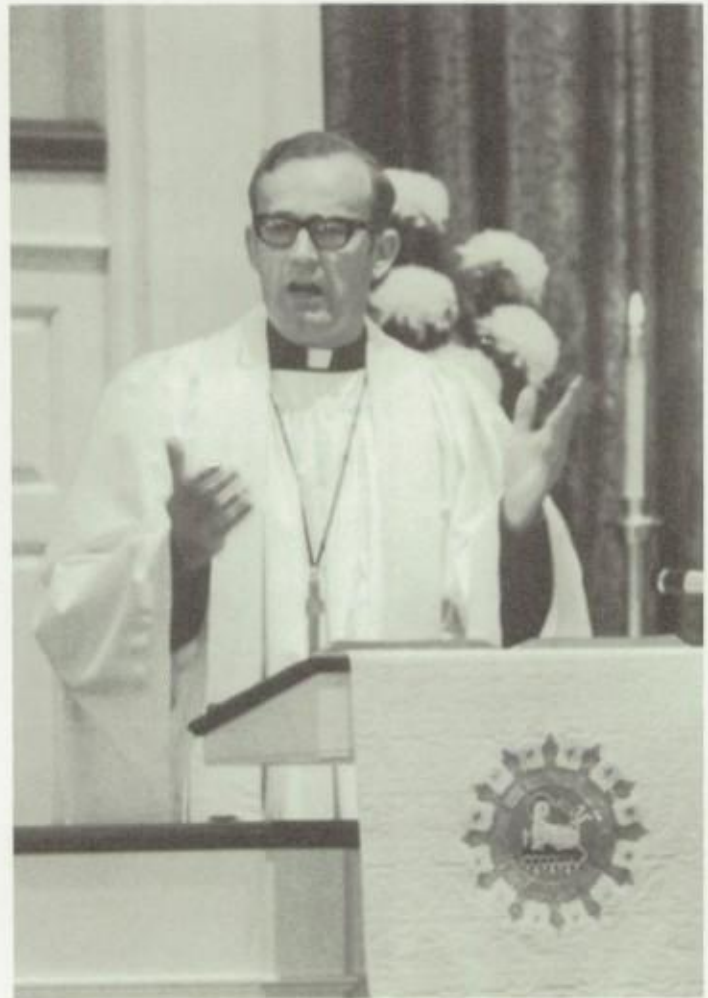

The Baccalaureate service for the 1969 graduating class was held June 1 at Schwarzwald United Church of Christ in Jacksonwald. The class was led in by marshals, Diane Clark and Patricia Woynarowski. The congregation was led in the liturgy by Reverend Clyde Huber, pastor of the host church. The sermon, "Free At Last" was delivered by Reverend Marvin Harding, pastor of Schwarzwald Lutheran Church, who emphasized to the class the responsibility they will undertake in the adult world they are entering. The seniors recessed ready to prepare for Commencement.

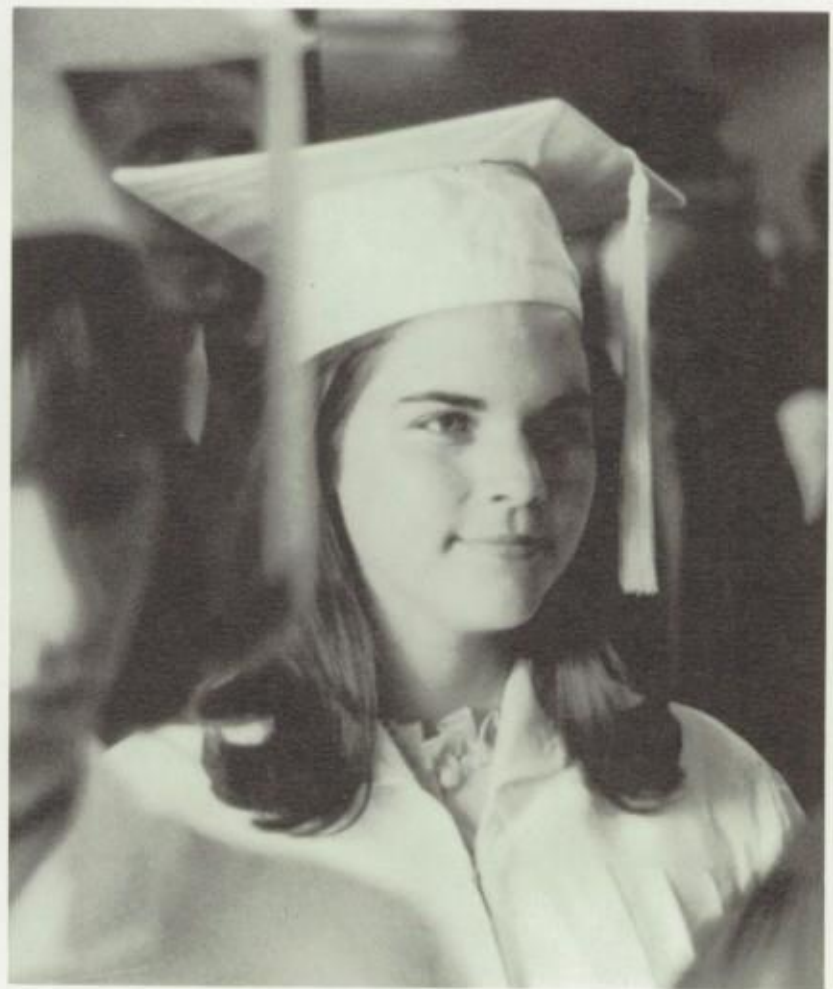

Diane Loeb and Scott Yoder listen intently to the sermon in order to find out how they can be "Free At Last."

Guest pastor, Reverend Harding, delivers the inspiring sermon.

Parents and relatives look on proudly as the seniors march up the aisle to their respective seats.

Denise Merkle displays a typical senior's expression on hearing those final words.

The congregation rises and bows their heads humbly for the 1969 graduating class's benediction.

Valedictorian Jackie Showalter reviews the world of the arts.

Ellen Herman speaks on today's sports.

Seniors Talk About Today's Youth

"Youth's Role in Shaping Our Society" was the appropriate theme of the honor students' and the class president's graduation speeches on June 5. W. Scott Yoder, class president, gave the address of welcome and was followed by Karen Bybel who introduced and concluded the four topics of youth's involvement which were discussed by student speakers. Ellen Herman spoke first on youth's participation in the field of sports and Beverly Quinter next discussed science, a second field of youth's endeavor. Delivering an address on the field of arts was Jacquelyn Showalter. A fourth topic of youth's influence, politics, was presented by Geoffrey Stuart.

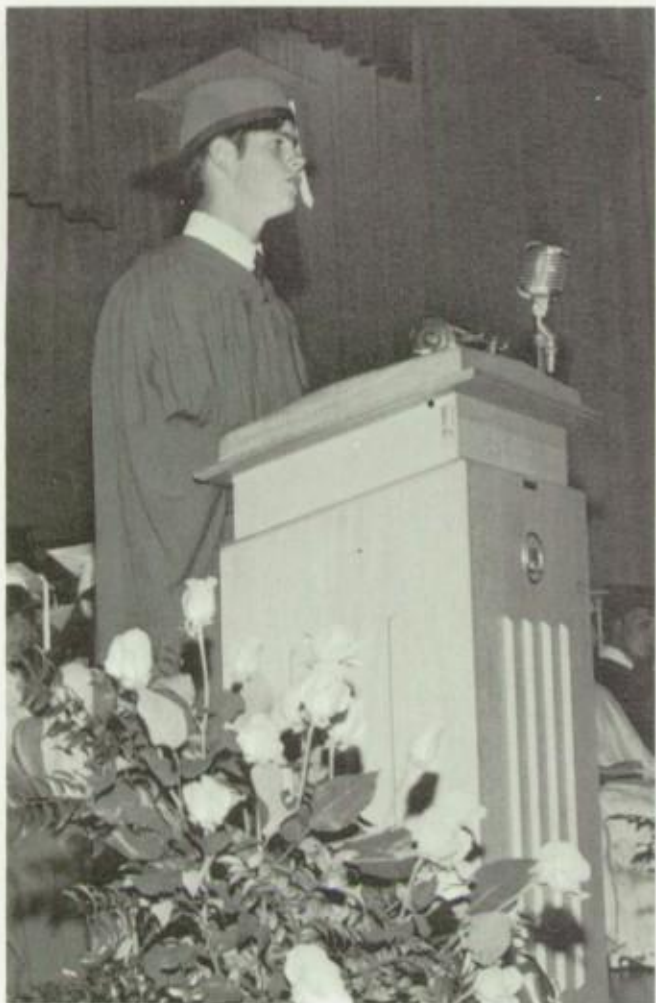

Dr. Edward Gilbert, associate professor of psychology at Albright College, gave the main address on "The Art of Living" in which he spoke to the seniors about their imminent future as persons.

Presentation of the class gift was then made by class secretary Diane Loeb to John Fidler. The check provided needed funds for a new electric scoreboard for the football field.

Climax of the evening was reached with the presentation of diplomas by Dr. James Holzman and Robert Quinter, members of the Board of School Directors. Assisted by honor graduates Sabine Mueller, Paul Lombardi, and Mark Perloe, this act brought to an end the high school life of the Class of 1969.

The audience is entertained by the brass quintet playing "Trumpet Voluntary."

Politics is the subject of Jeff Stuart's address.

Patricia Hegeman presents her solo, "The Impossible Dream."

Karen Bybel introduces and concludes the night's topic of the "Youth's Role In Shaping Our Society."

Beverly Quinter discusses youth and the sciences.

The 159 seniors assembled upon the stage marks the last commencement to be held in the high school auditorium.

The End Is But The Beginning As The Seniors Graduate

The seniors' last night in school marked the end of one life and the beginning of a new one. After twelve years of regimented study, graduation brought a new freedom to the 159 graduates. June 5, 1969, brought sadness and happiness to the new alumni, some of whom hated to leave "the good life" and others who welcomed their new future.

Speaking for the last time as class president, Scott Yoder welcomes faculty, family, and friends.

Dr. Gilbert in his address to the seniors stresses the fact that living in itself is an art.

Marsha Hess thanks her mother for the use of the handkerchief.

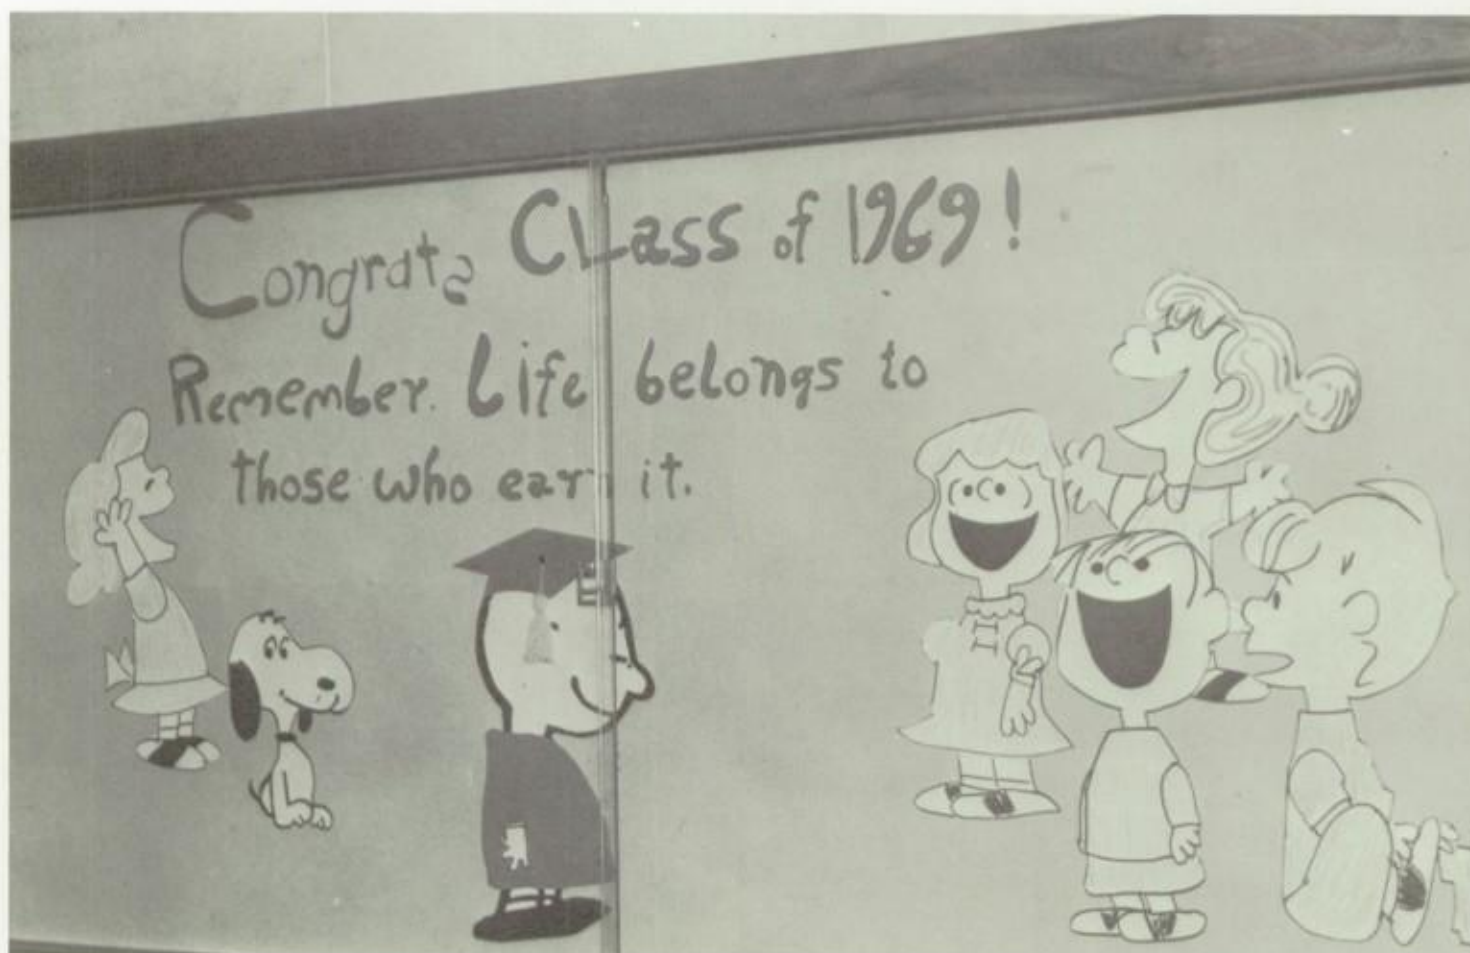

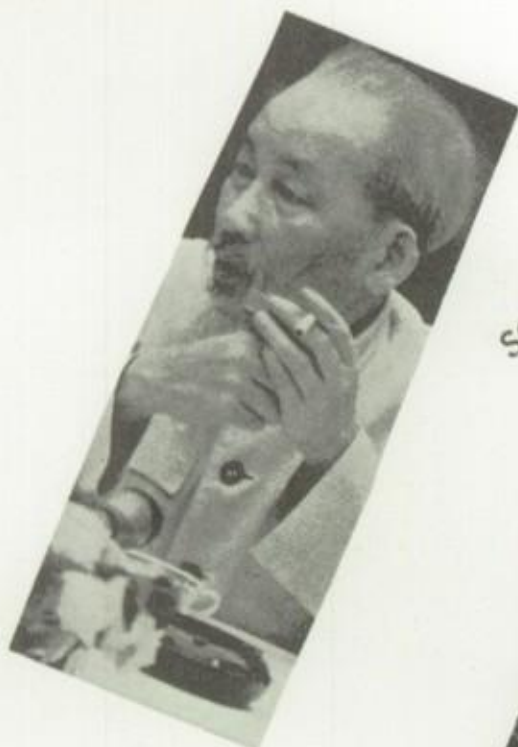

Happily accepting his diploma, Gary Holzman receives a congratulatory handshake from his father.

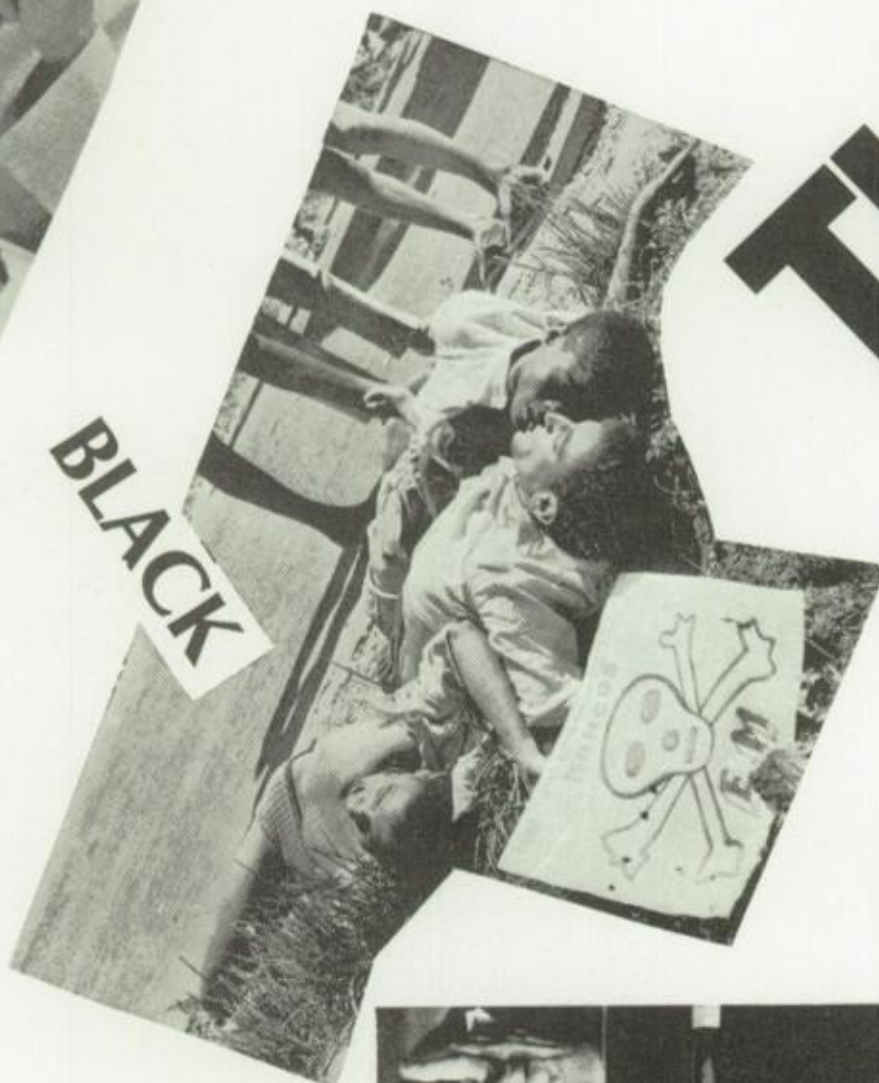

President-elect of Student Council, John Fidler, solemnly accepts the check for the class gift from class secretary Diane Loeb.

FACULTY

A Teacher's Memories Of This Year Will Include Correcting Papers, Broken Clocks,

Getting 30 Minutes For Lunch, And Having Pupils Ask, "Why Do We Study This?"

The faculty and administration worked to make our learning a meaningful experience. They employed all educational techniques possible and made their knowledge available to the students. Textbooks were not the only source of information as many teachers used films, filmstrips, and records to supplement the basic text of learning. Every classroom experience was a unique one because each teacher had his own way of making his subject meaningful. Because each teacher made his individual contribution to our lives, we will always remember our Alma Mater and the persons who helped make it memorable.

M. LUTHER LAUSCH
Superintendent

"Time", said St. Augustine, "is a three-fold present: the present as we experience it, the past as a present memory, and the future as a present expectation."

Your public school life is completed but what you have learned is a present memory ready to serve you. With that learning I hope you have acquired a set of values to regulate your life for the highest good of yourself and of humanity, a mind that is open until all evidence is in, and a sensitiveness to the rights and feelings of others that enables you to get along well with your fellowman.

As for the present, experience it to your full capacity. Don't let any present time actions jeopardize your future. Do live each day in a manner that will bring your highest hopes for the future a little closer to reality. My best wishes go with each of you.

Administrators' Messages Inspire Seniors

An Inquiry Into Life

The inspiration for the title and theme of this Message to the Seniors has come from the sub-title of a biology textbook found in room 208. That sub-title summarizes what your twelve years of formal education should have been: An Inquiry into Life. It further challenges each member of the Class of 1969 to make the future an exciting adventure in a continuing education.

Upon closer examination, two words of this sub-title demand that today's graduates look upon Commencement as literally what it is — a beginning, not an ending.

The first word, inquiry, asks us to regard the future as a thrilling, unknown quantity, waiting to be explored, questioned, and savored. Never lose the sense of wonder and excitement that comes with learning!

And never lose the sense of awe that come with a broadening knowledge of life. This second word, life, reminds us of the motto that soars on eagle's wings above our auditorium stage: Know Thyself. Live daily in an exciting intellectual environment, searching for truth about yourself and the world around you. With this spirit of discovery will come a joy in living that will make each tomorrow better than today.

Class of 1969, I dare you to face the future with this as your goal: an inquiry into life!

School Board And Authority Plan Jr. High Annex

The School Board, comprised of nine members, three of whom are elected biannually for a term of six years, provided the authority for school policy, finances, and employment of personnel. Even though the decisions rested on the shoulders of these men, they were governed by the laws of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

The School Building Authority, consisting of five men appointed by the board for five-year staggered terms, financed and arranged the construction of school buildings planned by the board. This past year the authority was especially busy with the building of two additional wings on the junior high school.

English — An Everyday Essential

Our English language, essential for day to day communications and promoting understanding throughout the world, was offered to students this year by Exeter's English department. Courses covered reading comprehension, grammar, and composition. The study of America and English Literature related to historical events that were important to the development of our culture. A course in speech was given to introduce and produce the correct manner of public speaking. For those interested in dramatic or literary careers, drama and journalism was offered as an elective. English, a mandatory subject for all students, furthered the progress of the individual, his country, and his neighbors.

Special Areas Increase Learning

The business department trained students in many areas to prepare them for future work in the community. Typing, shorthand, bookkeeping, business law, and the operation of business machines were courses offered to develop the students' skills. The work program gave seniors an opportunity to apply practically the skills taught in the classroom. Through this program seniors were placed at part-time jobs in the community during the school term. These jobs resulted in full time employment after graduation.

Exeter provided once-a-week art and music classes for all students in ninth grade and elective courses to upperclassmen. Also a chance was given to the students to show their talents in musical activities such as band and chorus.

Math Encourages Powers Of Logical Thinking

The math department of Exeter offered the courses of algebra, geometry, trigonometry, calculus, mathematical analysis, medical mathematics, and vocational and business math this year to the students of Exeter. Because of the great importance mathematics has held throughout the years, it was stressed this year as always. Through the teaching and encouragement of the members of Exeter's math department, our powers of reasoning and logical thinking were expanded.

Science Provides View Of Technological World

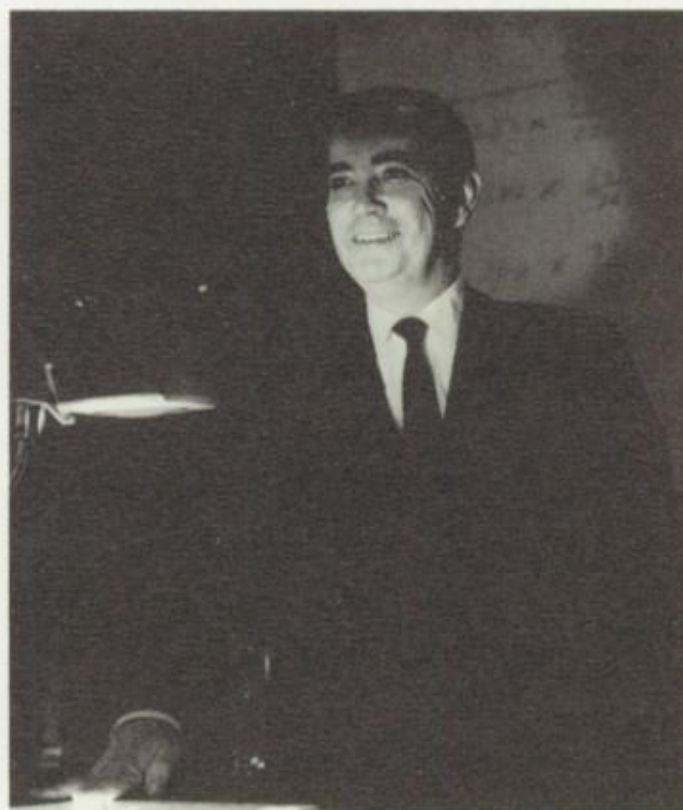

Exeter's science department provided the fundamental knowledge necessary for its students to step into any of the broadening fields of science.

The importance of today's technological world could not be emphasized enough. Basic courses were offered in the fields of biology, chemistry, physics, and human physiology. After basic skills were learned, advanced placement courses in biology and chemistry were offered to students who wished to further their learning in those fields. Through the study of these courses, the students were prepared to enter the world around them with an understanding of its composition and its people.

Our country was so involved this past year in international affairs that the need for knowledge of foreign languages was increasingly realized. Not only did students at Exeter become informed in the speaking, reading, and understanding of other languages, but they also augmented their English vocabulary.

The languages that were taught at Exeter were German, French and Latin. The German department offered an extensive program for students wishing to pursue a two year or four year course, which used aids such as German newspapers and magazines.

The French classes used the language lab as a method that enabled the students to hear and repeat the language under the guidance of the teacher.

Latin I and II gave students a broader background in English, the ancient history of Rome, and increased their knowledge of words.

Books Enrich Our Lives

Every student's goal, increased knowledge of himself and his environment, was enhanced by the vast resources offered in books, magazines, newspapers, records and filmstrips. Exeter's library, which amassed these items, provided easy access to its students and teachers.

Traffic Safety Is Taught

A basic education in traffic safety and the operation of an automobile was taught in Exeter's driver education course. The program developed the proper attitudes, habits, skills and courtesies used when driving a car. Classroom study and a behind-the-wheel program were provided for the student to learn and acquire practice in driving.

Physical Education Creates a Mature Person

A student was developed into a physically fit and mentally capable person after having sought and undertaken the opportunities in this world. The Physical Education department prepared us for our future life. This department created opportunities for its students to practice respect for themselves and others. When the students had learned self-discipline, they developed skills and knowledge in seasonal sports. Some of the team sports included in the curriculum were hockey, basketball, volleyball, and individual activities as gymnastics, and the national physical fitness test.

History Is Daily Life

The social studies department helped the student to realize a fuller understanding of himself and his environment in order to live in harmony with others.

The history department at Exeter offered the subjects of Pennsylvania history, the history of the United States, different cultures of the world and current affairs. Economics, philosophy, and government were also studied intensively. The opportunity to visit local industries was provided for the seniors. Study of the social sciences enabled the student to participate in the affairs of his world, his nation, and his community.

Special Skills Stressed

Scientific experiments developed time-saving changes in home economics. Exeter's students studied intercultural food and service, sewing, and child care. Two-year courses in food and nutrition or clothing study and textiles were electives for eleventh and twelfth grade students who were interested in these fields. A family living course was a mandatory subject for all seniors.

Exeter's program in electricity and electronics in industrial arts grew. Some students became a part of the total school picture by joining in the output of district graphic production work along with the complete final operations of the school newspaper.

Core Emphasizes Skills

The Core program was designed specifically for those students planning to become members of the labor force upon graduation. Taught by Mr. Jakubowski, the curriculum emphasized three major areas of study: basic skills, vocational, and social orientation. In the basic skill area reading and practical English and mathematics were studied. Vocational study covered the proper attitudes expressed on the job and in the third area, social orientation, individual and group discussions of various facets of life were held.

Guidance Helps Students

The counselor, a resource person for students, teachers, and parents, enriched the life and growth of the American Ideal. The Ideal depended upon the development in each child of fulfilling his potential to achieve and the ability of his society to create opportunities. Guidance made this achievement possible. Miss Lewis aided the student to achieve by recognizing his individual differences, accepting his "uniqueness", and respecting the dignity and worth of him. She was able to do this with the aid of personal interview, psychological testing, interpretation of records, and information on post-graduate planning.

Mrs. Frances Seidel, Mrs. Pauline Arnidis, Mrs. Betty Keller, Mrs. Ida Williams, Mrs. Pat Snyder.

Cooks Provide Nutritional Diet

The cafeteria staff worked diligently and conscientiously to provide well-balanced and nutritional meals for the student body and faculty. The staff kept Exeter's cafeteria running as efficiently as possible by preparing the meals on time for the four lunch periods. A sanitary lunchroom was made possible by these proficient workers.

Secretaries Help In School

The office staff, whose work was often taken for granted, had the responsibility of taking care of the clerical work of the school. The secretaries at Exeter prevented disorganization of the records that were kept in the files and assisted the administration, faculty, and students during the school year.

MRS. H. REBECCA SNYDER
St. Joseph's Hospital, R.N.; Albright College; Lehigh University; Lebanon Valley College.

Mrs. Joan Graefe, Mrs. Betty Christman, Mrs. Mary King, Mrs. Sara Meister, Mrs. Eleanor Leinbach.

Health Is Made Meaningful

The school nurse worked with administrators, local physicians, dentists, community health agencies, and parents in making health appraisals. Mrs. Rebecca Snyder's R.N. duties included administering emergency care in case of an in-school accident or illness, assisting with the control of communicable disease, cooperating with cafeteria personnel to provide nutritional meals, and providing individualized guidance and counseling. She tried to make health meaningful to the students.

Drivers Provide Transportation

The bus drivers were responsible for transportation to and from school every weekday morning and afternoon. These people also provided their time and efforts for the students when transportation was necessary for extra-curricular activities.

Advertisements Mirror The Prosperity Of Our Community, Reminding Us Of Bowling, Enjoying Hamburgers And Milk Shakes, Choosing A Wardrobe, Repairs, And Buying Fuel.

No school year could be called complete without the memories of stopping at the favorite hamburger stand after the game to meet the crowd or running into a classmate to help pick out a wardrobe. Yes, each student was dependent in some way on any member of the business community, whether it be relying on the good judgment of a mechanic to fix the car or just knowing that a place would provide enjoyment for an evening. Without the support of the patrons and advertisers, the yearbook would not be a reality. However, as enterprise worked in America, we depended on them and they depended on us. Together we created an indelible memory.

Reflections Of The Year Have Been Recorded Here

As a mirror, students reflect the impression a school has made upon themselves. We must project our image forward, to the future. The end of high school marks the end of one stage of training and the beginning of another. To some this second stage is in college, business or technical schools or the service. No matter what course one follows, the important fact is that the image shown to the outside reflects the schooling at Exeter.

The look to the future may seem dismal but in it lies that hope for a better world. The everyday life and death struggle for survival will continue. The fittest are the educated. We the educated are the future leaders of society. As leaders we will again reflect the image of our past. Let us hope this image is good for Exeter. With confidence, the class of '69 enters the strange and foreboding world, and the rest of the student body continues toward the same goal.
